"One Day in the Park"

Every year, Musashino Art University in the Kodaira area of Tokyo has an outdoor exhibit of art in nearby Chuo Park. I think it's a great idea - it ties in the university with the local city (Kodaira on one hand, and Tokyo in the larger sense) and provides a link with art and people's everyday lives.

This year, they put up several stands with a map of the park showing where and what exhibits there are, with a water-proof compartment containing free pamphlets - the cover of which I scanned for the image below.

As is always the case with art - some of the exhibits I liked a lot, others less so. Just a few of the exhibits are in the following images (along with a few pictures of the park to show the fall colors but without any man-made art in them).

Most people seemed to come to the park by train, but it also has a parking lot, with this road providing access into and out of the park from a nearby main road. Copyright 2004, by Lyle (Hiroshi) Sa lylehsaxon@yahoo.com http://www5d.biglobe.ne.jp/~LLLtrs/
