

MP-16 May 9th, 2000 - Working Here & There

Riding the Yamanote Line in the morning. Walking to work in Kanda.

E-Mail at Starbucks. From the back of the Marunouchi Line as it goes underground.

Near the office job in Yotsuya. Elementary school ducks. On to Kamata!

The subway... above ground from Shinagawa... the better side of train travel.

This photo sequence of my work day has suddenly become history. The morning job in Kanda is finished, and the Kamata job will wrap up in a month or so... Note the seventh photo. The street to the right leads straight to the Shinjuku high rise building area, and the left of the "V" is the entrance to an underground tunnel which is near the former Kanda riverbed.

I need to jump ahead with the photos, or I'll fall further and further from the present.....

Copyright 2000 Lyle (Hiroshi) Saxon (June 20th, 2000)